
The Winter Garden Bar

The History of the Hotel

The palazzo of The St. Regis Florence was constructed in 1432, originally known as the "Palazzo Giuntini". This palace was conceived by Filippo Brunelleschi, the same architect who designed the dome of the famous cathedral in Florence. This private residence evolved into a hotel in 1866 when it was bought by the Kraft family. During the same period, the iconic Winter Garden was created as an internal space for special occasions — a white marble fountain was placed in the centre of this unique courtyard, while an abundance of ornamental plant species flourished under its balcony. It is in this exquisite setting that the Winter Garden Restaurant & Bar is situated, punctuated by the wonderful stained-glass ceiling and an impressive six hundred pound Murano blown-glass chandelier.

The Story of the Bloody Mary

In 1934, Fernand Petiot became a bartender at The St. Regis New York, bringing with him the "Bloody Mary", a drink with a base of vodka and tomato juice that he began in Paris. It was at the famous King Cole Bar of The St. Regis that Petiot perfected his recipe, renaming it the "Red Snapper" to suite the hotel's high-end clientele... and even if the name did not stick, the spicy drink certainly did. Discover our curated menu of Bloody Marys that celebrates the iconic St. Regis cocktail and the cosmopolitan spirit that inspires its various interpretations.

The Pentagram 30

The Winter Garden Bar is not simply a bar: it is a stage. Each evening, beneath the extraordinary 19th-century stained-glass ceiling and the Murano glass chandelier, the piano sets the tone for an experience that transcends the simple act of drinking. The ritual of sabrage raises the curtain, the lighting transforms the atmosphere, and live music becomes the soundtrack to an unforgettable evening.

Our Signature List is born from this uniqueness. Its fil rouge is music—not as mere decoration, but as a narrative language: each cocktail is a note, and our guests, the orchestra.

The Story of the Negroni

It was 1919 in Florence when Count Camillo Negroni, a regular guest of the Winter Garden Bar, would stop for a drink at the Drogheria Casoni, located on the corner of Via de' Tornabuoni.

One evening, while drinking there, he asked the bartender, Fosco Scarselli, to strengthen his usual Americano with a touch of gin, in homage to his English origins.

The result was a drink with the same deep, intense red colour, a pleasantly dry sensation on the palate, and a distinctive note of juniper. From that moment on, the Count's "Americano" became what we now know as the "Negroni": equal parts gin, red vermouth and Campari, garnished with a slice of orange.
